Preface ix

Introduction
by Eva Bergman and Lars-Anders Hansson ..... xi–xii

Lake Ringsjön: its catchment area, its history and its importance
by Lars-Anders Hansson, Magnus Enell and Eva Bergman 1–7

Changes in nutrient load and lake water chemistry in Lake Ringsjön, southern Sweden, from 1966 to 1996
by Eva Bergman 9–18

Internal phosphorus loading in Lake Ringsjön
by Wilhelm Granéli 19–26

Qualitative and quantitative investigations of phytoplankton in Lake Ringsjön, Scania, Sweden
by Gertrud Cronberg 27–40

Autumn waterfowl abundance in Lake Ringsjön, 1968–1996
by Gunnar Andersson and Leif Nilsson 41–51

Biomanipulation in a theoretical and historical perspective
by Eva Bergman, Lars-Anders Hansson and Gunnar Andersson 53–58

Planning and execution of the fish reduction in Lake Ringsjön by Stellan F. Hamrin 59–63

The effects of cyprinid reduction on the fish community
by Eva Bergman, Stellan F. Hamrin and Pia Romare 65–75

Lack of a top-down effect on the zooplankton community after a cyprinid reduction by Eva Bergman and Eva Bergstrand 77–87

Juvenile fish expansion following biomanipulation and its effect on zooplankton
by Pia Romare and Eva Bergman 89–97

Impact of cyprinid reduction on the benthic macroinvertebrate community and implications for increased nitrogen retention by Jonas M. Svensson, Eva Bergman and Gunnar Andersson 99–112

The development of submerged macrophytes in Lake Ringsjön after biomanipulation
by John A. Strand 113–121

The occurrence of toxic blue-green algae in Lake Ringsjön, southern Sweden, despite nutrient reduction and fish biomanipulation by Gertrud Cronberg, Heléne Annadotter and Linda A. Lawton 123–129

Simulating the effects of biomanipulation on the food web of Lake Ringsjön by Anders Persson, Andreas Barkman and Lars-Anders Hansson 131–144

Synthesis of theoretical and empirical experiences from nutrient and cyprinid reductions in Lake Ringsjön

by Eva Bergman, Lars-Anders Hansson, Anders Persson, John A. Strand, Pia Romare, Magnus Enell, Wilhelm Granéli, Jonas M. Svensson, Stellan F. Hamrin, Gertrud Cronberg, Gunnar Andersson and Eva Bergstrand 145–156
